& FOUNDER

The Elizabeth Tweneboah Foundation
Give Truth. Give Life. Birth Power.

Christine E. Ohenewah is a Lawyer, Professor, and Institutional Founder born in Accra, Ghana and based in New York. She founded The Elizabeth Tweneboah Foundation to build vocational pathways that help people attain their own power by becoming creators over consumers. Her flagship initiative, Men's Rea™, addresses one of the most urgent social challenges of our time—male loneliness and the masculinity crisis—by using legal reasoning to help men cultivate self-governance and to move toward genuine purpose.

SIGNATURE TALKS

I Listening to Men Beyond Pathology

This interactive seminar proposes deep, non-judgmental listening to receive instead of fix the inner lives of men by acknowledging the forces that men are constantly made to battle.

CORPORATE & EXECUTIVE AUDIENCES · HIGHER EDUCATION

II Why Women Need Power, Not Equality

This interactive seminar calls for women to lead more embodied lives by assuming—rather than asking for—the power they have always held.

WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP · PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT · UNIVERSITIES

III Debunking the Modern Relationship

This interactive seminar applies legal reasoning and sociological analysis toward modern gendered scripts that place strain on contemporary dynamics between men and women.

UNIVERSITIES · ORGANIZATIONS

"To me, defending the highest potential in others is the essence of what it means to be a lawyer."
